Acknowledgments

I wish to express my gratitude to my close friend Dr. Umar Ryad for providing me with relevant materials from the Library of Leiden University as well as for his encouragement in general.

My special thanks also go to Mr. Mahmoud Hasan from the library of the American University in Cairo for providing me with relevant materials.

I am very grateful to A. Sayeed for her stimulating advice. I am also grateful to Ruth Roded for her support.

I would like to extent my thanks to Marwa Elnaggar for editing the thesis.

I am indebted as well to Mr. Attiyah Sulayman who hosted me at his place in Leiden during my travels to the Netherlands.

I would like also to thank my parents, my brother and sister, my parents-in-law, and other family members whose love, support and encouragement made this work possible.

Finally, I am especially grateful to my wife, Basma Sayyid, for being beside me throughout the difficult period while I was working on this dissertation, as well as for providing the atmosphere to do research and study. Her patience with me while I was spending so much time doing research and traveling was exemplary. The same goes for my beloved daughters, Maryam, Hagar and Sarah, whose love and humor eased the tension of study.
